This MCR Notes:

1. Debrett's Handbook is the best etiquette manual popularly available and has been publishing such texts of this type since the mid 1900s. It claims itself to be 'the trusted source on British social skills'.
2. That a number of MCR members enjoying doing crosswords and that this is a social activity.

This MCR Believes:

1. That MCR members, particularly freshers coming from universities other than Oxford, would benefit from increased advice over dress codes.
2. Debrett's Handbook would be a useful addition to the MCR library for members to consult to this end.
3. Debrett's Handbook also contains other information that may be useful to MCR members, for example the correct forms of address to use in formal communication.
4. That with the cutting back of one of our daily publications MCR members may reduce access to crosswords.

This MCR Resolves:

1. To purchase Debrett's Handbook (approx. £35).
2. To purchase one or more volumes from The Times Jumbo Crossword series (approx.. £7), or alternative publication as recommended in consultation with MCR members.
3. That the MCR will ensure that there is a full range of dress code options, including a gender neutral option, on the website and in communication about events
